“ Hey buddy, just got to switch out a new computer. Wanted to post to you how much I have missed you. The family is doing well still, and we're just getting by and healing slowly. Mom still misses you and still talks about how you were the sweetest dog. Thanks for giving us the best 13 years.

“ Having computer troubles again as usual, it's getting quite annoying but I'm glad that I get to type once I get the chance. I've been working on my writing, trying to improve on that since that's how I vent my emotions nowadays. I guess this is one of the things I do just to relieve some feelings, since I still do miss you.

Your little sister got to walk around the park today, being really good at walking beside the leash instead of tugging. Sadly she didn't get to meet many people because everyone was on their phones playing Pokemon GO in the park. It's funny watching everyone playing that game, you might have nagged me as usual to stop playing that game when I get too carried away. Your sister does that same when I stay up too late at night.

Missing you always, Chewy.

“ Hey! It's been busy as usual. Would love to type to you on the 20th of every month, but planning things out made things hectic here. Your little sister has been doing well, I'm surprised of how alike she is to you. I don't know, it just makes us feel better of how goofy she is around us.

I miss you as usual, but I've been seeing brighter days as of lately. I don't know how it will work out since I can't predict the future, but I sure hope my path will be great without seeing my little baby minpin. Will always have you in my memories.

“ Whew, finally the computer works!

It's been kinda mellow lately, and the weather's been bipolar as ever. You might have not liked it because you always just wanted to hang around the fan and not move.

I lit another candle to your memory so...Heh, I'm getting better with each month. Type to you again next month. :3

“ Hey there, just another message to another 20th of a month!

I've been a little depressed lately, but hey - I just gotta get over it as usual. Life goes on, but it can be enjoyable to say at least. I still miss you, even if it's been a while since you've been gone. I guess everyone saying your friend's passing never leaves your thoughts.

I'm gonna go light another candle for you in your memory. I think that'll help me feel better and you can get some little monthly memorial going. Hehe, type to you again next month!

“ Hey buddy! Sorry it's a little late, yesterday was hectic and I was out the entire day. We were looking for a new apartment to live in. It looks great, but we have yet looked inside. Remember when you used to live in an apartment, hahaha... You were really yappy as a puppy.

You quieted down though as you grew up, a lot of people called you too calm for a Miniature Pinscher. I was proud of you for that. Your little sis cuddles my head now on the bed, just like you did. It's weird because wherever I move my head, she goes and lays next to it and lay her head in my hair. You guys are weird, I'll probably never figure out.

Well, hopefully the move process won't affect my messages to you too much. I'd like to continue posting letters since I still miss you so much. Seem kinda selfish, huh?

See you next month. <3

“ Another month has passed again my dear friend.

I still can't believe that you are gone, really. I don't know, it still feels like you are here and wagging your tail while greeting me. Tears still fall when someone mentions the good times we had together, and even the mention of your name makes me bawl like a little baby.

Some university knows about your passing, which was something surprising since well... We never expected some school mailing us about you. It was quite touching, and I'm happy for you that people will remember you even when you were just a little pup for our family.

Your little sister is doing well still, learning a lot of things and understanding our words meanings for really creepy reasons. I would point out her mistakes in a soft tone and she would cower like I'm punishing her. Gee, I don't even know how she knows what I am saying... She's still quite young as a pup, you know.

I don't know if you knew that we wanted a new addition to the family and you decided you were too old to stick around. You were always too giving to us and always putting us before you. We wouldn't have minded you sticking around for another few years with her around us. But then again, I think you showed me that you felt it was the time to go once you passed away in my arms peacefully. I'll never forget that.

Well, It's getting late. I couldn't sleep because I wanted to type this letter to you... Sleep well my precious friend and baby, I will write to you again next month.

“ The message wouldn't submit on the phone but here's what I put down yesterday.

"Hey! It's my birthday! Kinda funny that my birthdate lands on the days I write to you. I remember on my 16th birthday that you would desperately stare at my cake, wanting to have a slice. Sadly, it was chocolate flavored. Sorry.

Your little sister pup is still doing well. She's grown a lot! She's become a lot smarter too, but she needs some pup to occupy her. She would hug me whenever I'm mourning your ashes on my computer desk, which is a nice thing of her to do. Right now, she's peeking out the window... She's such a funny one.

Also, Mom's wanting another dog. Since you left her such a good memory, you got rid of her fear of dogs. Now she's obsessed and wants any dog that she sees. Look what you did, you silly pup...

Well, I guess that's it for writing. Until next month."

“ Hey, three days late because it's been hectic lately. I remember the time when you and I celebrated a nice Christmas together on the couch and watched some TV. Your little sister watches TV too, isn't that funny?

She likes watching both humans and animals on TV, while you only cared for animals. It was funny when you used to watch My Little Pony in the living all by yourself. You were such an odd little dog.

I still miss you, sweetie pie. Write to you soon next month.

“ It's been another month of you departing from us, still miss you and think about you everyday. I guess I find peace in writing you these letters, every month since when it nears I remember you passing away in my arms. It's painful and bittersweet, but I still thank you for teaching me many valuable lessons. Your little sister pup is doing well. She's growing up to be a smart puppy who kinda acts like you, she follows Mom around the house and makes sure she doesn't get into any trouble. I guess you won't have to worry about that now, heh.

Will write again next month, heh heh.

“ It's been a whole month of you departing, and yet I still miss you very much Chewy. There's still going to be a lot of time where I need you still, but I am enduring from the grief okay now.

We got another pup that was supposed to be your friend and younger sister, I wish you were still here to play with her. Thank you for all the good times we had shared, and I honestly won't forget you.
