“ No one who has never had a pet would or could understand the sorrow and pain when losing them in your hands. People think oh its just a animal. No its NOT. They feel your Joy... they feel your Sadness.. your Pain. They become a part of not just your home, your family but mainly your heart. Everything you can want in a pet and a friend. Our Kitten loved car rides no matter what time of the day. She checked on everyone in their bedrooms by knocking on the doors. Then stand there for a moment to decide who needed her to sit or lay by their side. She welcomed anyone walking in the door. What seems to be like full on cat sentences. And did same when anyone left. No matter where she was in house she would run out if she heard chip bag or deli package open. Hoping to get some.. which she always did. She laid behind you if you were on couch with a paw on you as you watched a movie. Like she wanted you to know a friend is with you are sitting alone. If you were laying down she made it a point to sleep on your lower back or between your legs trapping you sometimes. But she really wanted you to stay in one place to share moments with her. When my kids were sick or I was recovering from many surgeries in the 16 yrs with us it was her that stayed by our sides. Along with our other cat that has passed. I just dont understand how she was running around being so active at over 16 yrs of age and suddenly be bleeding internally with liver cancer. After shes been to vets so much making sure shes good. Heart breaking. She was just here now gone. I wish people had even half the heart this little cat called Kitten had. Some pets should out live many people I know. They deserve the decades than some people. They appreciated Life and Loved full heartedly with no harm intended. Its Pets that dont miss a beat in their loved ones lives. Where people seem to not care or want to be bothered.

I love you Kitten 🐱 with all my heart. Thank you for tolerating the many moves . All our heart breaks and the craziness of our family. I know its never easy living with any of us. To us you were a person not a animal. You will NEVER be forgotten. Heart broken 💔

“ t's so hard to find the right words right now. Thank you Kitten for being the absolute best kitty ever. Thank you for always being the light in my life and giving me hope. I would never be here without all that you and Tiger have done for me. Thank you for always being down to do anything and go on any adventure I had planned for you. From car rides, going on walks, being the studio kitty, and going literally anywhere with me. You've touched so many lives and even turned cat haters into cat lovers. You truly are so special. I will miss you running and screaming to greet me and say goodbye every time I walk through the door. It's so weird not seeing you follow me or anyone around you everywhere. Thank you for always being there with me every time I was hurting and all the cuddles. I miss having all 4-5 of you guys laying with me and practically building a wall around and on my body every night. You were the best girl ever and stayed spunky, happy, purring, and cuddled all the way to the end. I felt you squeeze my finger so hard while purring and let me know it was okay right before you took your last breath in my arms. You truly are an angel and I'll never forget what you've done for me. 💜🐱🖤💜
