

Lola Guaba

April 16, 2023

Born January 2005, Lola lived 18 years before passing naturally in our home surrounded by love and support. Her old age had caught up to her, and though scared she used the last of her strength to make sure she did not leave us without a final goodbye. On April 16th, 2023 at approximately 1:35 AM Lola died in my arms after shakily climbing onto my lap. She silently layed down and passed after looking at me one last time. She lived a spoiled life, with all the food, toys, and comforts anybody could want. she was a fighter from start to finish and a good girl till the end. I'll miss watching TV, sharing meals, and talking with my little couch potato. i hope everyone remembers her in her prime, when shed run around the house after we got home, or jumped onto the table to steal food, or even when she'd get mad and pee on the bed on purpose! While her old age was sad to witness in comparison, she lived every second comfortably and we loved her more than words could tell. We'll miss her dearly.

She was my best friend, finest companion, and dearest family.
