“ "A true friend is one soul in two bodies"

-Aristotle.

People say dogs are humans best friends, that they pick you and that was my case, I always wanted a Maltese but when I went to find one just before I was leaving the place I saw a little furry black bowl with legs and I ask the helper what kind of dogs is he? Can I see him? That was 14 years ago the rest is history. Those who knows me know that my dogs are my children, I love them with all my heart. Today is a extremely sad day for me as my Lorenzo left this world on this could and dark early morning. He had a heart condition and He wasn't felling good last night so I did what mothers do, I give him a message a warm bath and slept with me with lots of kisses and love. Around 3am I brought him to his bed and by 7am that I woke up he was gone. I guess God knew I wasn't ready to see him dying and I feel a huge regret I didn't stay with him and say goodbye. This is so painful I am still can't believe his gone. I know he had a great life full of love and lots of treats. Lorenzo thank you for the best 14 years of my life. ❤️ I will forever have you in my heart. We will see again. Rest in paradise son of mine. Here is the last pic I took a few weeks ago. If you have pets love them everyday they are unconditional love and depend 100% on you. This is so painful. 💔
