

Zeus, Artemis & Cloud Cornwell

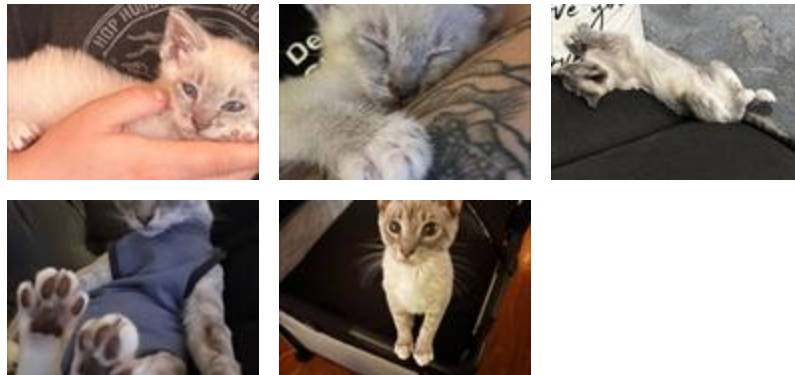

February 24, 2024

No obituary found for this tribute.

Tribute Wall

AC

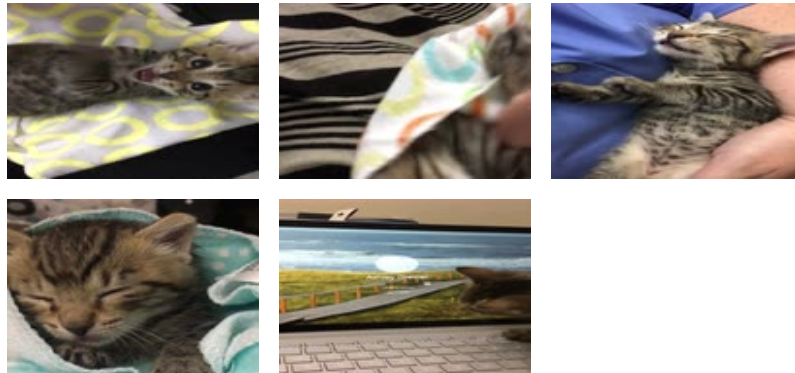

“ Cloud was our silly spunky baby girl, who had just joined our family in August of 2023. Like her older sister, she was also found as an abandoned kitten by my family at their workshop in Paterson, NJ. She was always down to go on an adventure and we took lots of little trips to Starbucks and the EV charging station together. Only ten weeks older than her human baby brother, we are fairly convinced that she thought he was just her weird hairless littermate. She absolutely loved snuggling with her baby brother, and stealing all of his things. She was without a doubt, “his cat”. She loved petty theft and was a binky bandit who had a habit of hiding her treasures all around the house; when we dropped her off for her spay surgery, we were sure to include one of the baby’s binkys in her carrier. She was blind in one eye, but she was fearless as hell and did not let her impaired vision stop her from her kitten mischief and mayhem. She loved to run around the house and rough house with Zeus. She did this cute little sideways hop when she was excited or startled. Everyone who met Cloud fell in love with her. I remember our vet’s office staff remarking how well behaved she was and asking “why can’t all cats be like Cloud?” and truly, there will never be another Cloud in our lifetime. She was one of a kind. Her life was cut far too short by this tragedy, and she will live forever in our hearts as our baby girl. Until we meet again, Cloud baby. I hope you find all of the good hiding spots for your treasures up there.

Ashley Cornwell - March 07, 2024 at 04:55 PM

AC

“ I remember when you brought her home at just a couple days old and helping you bottlefeed her every two hours. I used to take videos when you were at work so you could see that Artemis was doing great. She was such a playful little kitty may she rest in sweet peace.

Ann Marie Corley - March 07, 2024 at 12:03 PM

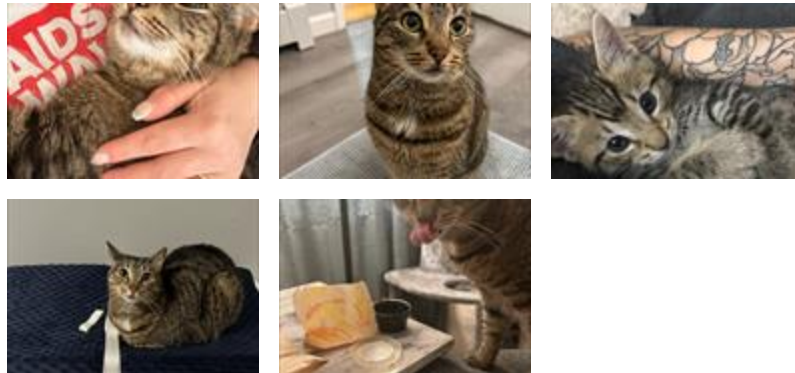

AC

Thank you for these memories of our little girl ☐

Ashley Cornwell - March 07, 2024 at 08:10 PM

AC

“Artemis was our little girl, who joined our family in 2018. She was found as an orphaned newborn kitten behind a cabinet at my family’s workshop in Paterson, NJ; she was bottle fed and raised by me from a few days old. Artemis was a mama’s girl through and through, and she had decided that she was “my cat”. While she did not care much for the company of others, she would occasionally grace our friends with her presence. She enjoyed sharing my dinner, and was looking forward to her human baby brother starting solids so that she could share his as well. Everyday I would pick her up and hold her in the doorway so that she could bird watch, then she would nudge me to let me know that she was done and I could put her down. She curled up with me almost every night until her baby brother was born and she found comfort in cuddling with her dad; she still found every spare moment that I wasn’t holding the baby to jump into my lap for a boop. She gave the best boops and head butts. She was the sweetest little lady, who had so much love to give to us. Artemis would have turned 6 this summer. Rest in the sweetest peace, little girl. Keep your siblings out of trouble.”

Ashley Cornwell - March 06, 2024 at 08:35 PM

KA

“ we will forever love our nieces and nephew and i know there's windowsills with your names on them babies ”

kate - March 05, 2024 at 10:04 PM

AC

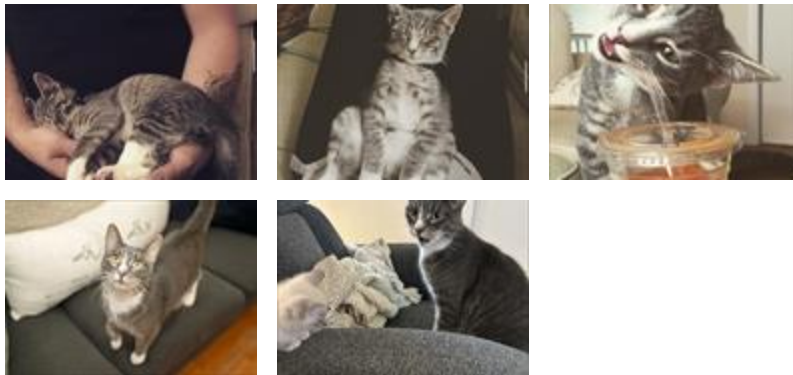

“ Zeus was the first cat that we adopted together in 2015. We always said that he was born into a life of privilege because we adopted him from our local shelter, whereas his sisters were born on the streets of Paterson, NJ. Anyone who walked through our door was greeted by Zeus demanding their attention; he made a lot of friends with his persistence, and left a lasting impression as the most social cat around. He was constantly finding trouble, whether he was chewing on plastic or climbing into an open cabinet or closet. He reluctantly welcomed his sisters into his life, becoming the best big brother to Artemis and Cloud; he gave Artemis first pick of where to curl up on our bed, and he was always found running around playing with Cloud, even when she played a little too rough and nipped at him. He is survived by his best friend and boyfriend, Pants, who lives with our former roommate and his fiancé. Zeus would have been 9 years old on March 30th, and you never would have known that he was technically classified as a senior cat. Rest in peace, little boy. Take care of your sisters. ❤️

Ashley Cornwell - March 05, 2024 at 09:19 AM

AC

“ Zeus was the first cat that we adopted together in 2015. We always joke that he came from a life of privilege, because we adopted him from our local shelter, whereas his sisters were born on the streets of Paterson, NJ. He was always getting into trouble, climbing into any open cabinet or closet he could find and chewing on any plastic within reach. If you were to walk through our door, you were going to be greeted by Zeus, whether it was the first or the fiftieth time he had met you, he always demanded your attention; he was a very social cat, and he made a lot of friends with his persistence. He reluctantly accepted his sisters into his life, becoming the best big brother to Artemis and Cloud; he gave Artemis first pick of where to curl up on our bed at night and he was always found running around playing with Cloud, even when she played a little too rough and nipped at him. He is survived by his best friend and boyfriend, Pants, who lives with our former roommate and his fiancé. Zeus would have turned 9 on March 30, 2024. Rest in peace, little boy. Take care of your sisters.

Ashley Cornwell - March 05, 2024 at 09:00 AM

AC

“ Our sweet babies. You were our first babies, and we love you to the ends of the earth. We are so sorry. ”

Ashley Cornwell - February 25, 2024 at 08:45 AM

Your cats were so sweet and loving. So good with little man too. My heart breaks for the loss you are experiencing.

Lori-jo Jaycox - March 05, 2024 at 03:47 PM